The Quaker Experience During the American Revolution

On Thursday, April 21st at 7:00 pm, Bucks Quarterly Meeting is excited to present a lecture by Carol Ann Gray, entitled The Quaker Experience During the American Revolution. The lecture is based on Carol Ann's soon to be published book Finding Our Foundation, which explores the history of Plumstead Meeting from the days before William Penn and goes through modern times, focusing on the experiences of one rural meeting, but put in the context of American history in general and more specifically in Quaker history in the Delaware Valley.

This talk focuses on the experience of Bucks County Quakers leading up to and during the American Revolutionary War, but it also touches on events in the wider Philadelphia Yearly Meeting community. It begins with the French and Indian War and ends with the escapades of the Doan Brothers. Events during the Revolution center on the year 1777.

Quaker pacifism was misunderstood by both sides of the conflict, and during the Revolution Friends endured much suffering, including confiscation of their property, imprisonment, and execution. Just to attend weekly meeting for worship at the scheduled time was an act of courage. But at the same time, Quakers were doing much to relieve the suffering of those of all faiths who were victims of violence, and in the end, won the admiration of George Washington.

Carol Ann Gray is a retired veterinarian and a long time member of the Society of Friends, first at Newtown Friends Meeting, and now at Plumstead Friends Meeting. She has a special interest in history and is the author of a previous book, Fourteen Quaker Meetinghouses. Registration is required; click here to register to receive the Zoom link.

Workshop Proposals

At the February Quarterly Meeting, the following two workshop proposals were raised to see if there was any interest; we are giving it one more month and then a decision will be made if there is interest; please read the descriptions and email the coordinator at quakersbucks@gmail.com if you are moved to participate:

Meditative Writing Workshop: Doylestown Friend Jen de Richemond has presented this workshop at two FGC Gatherings, with the goal of participants using writing as an avenue of discovery and to expand the experience of personal creativity. Workshop goals would be to develop skills and comfort levels in using writing as an avenue for worship, daily journaling, and an increased confidence in the ability to use writing as a form of self-expression. This would begin as a weekly workshop, running for 1-1.5 hours in the early evening for eight weeks, with the possibility of continuing longer if participants wish.

Friends Position Papers: Makefield Friend Jerry Taylor describes himself as a “political creature.” With this in mind, he has created a platform for a “Party of Friends” and suggests that at each Meeting Friends gather, debate and present position papers from their Meeting on a variety of topics, such as climate change, immigration and health care. This is supposed to be light. It could be Young Adult focused or it could be inclusive of all ages. If we get a few meetings participating, we could create a zoom meeting with chat rooms to discuss and formulate positions. Questions? Contact Jerry Taylor at jerry.taylor35@verizon.net.

Breathe Easy with the Alexander Technique: Apr 2nd, 11 am–12 pm. In this workshop, we'll take a look at the anatomy and mechanics of breathing and discover some ways to direct the breath. Meditation Myth-Busters: Apr 9th, 10–11 am. Join a free webinar that will bust the many myths surrounding meditation, as we wonder together about just what insight meditation is, and what it is not. You'll get a chance to experience it for yourself, ask questions, and get a sneak preview of...

Introduction to Mindfulness Meditation: Apr 19–May 24th, 7–9 pm. This 6-week course will provide fundamental instruction in Insight (Vipassana) meditation. Edward Hicks Day

Langhorne Council for the Arts will host a community-wide celebration of Langhorne's native son, primitive folk artist Edward Hicks, on Saturday, April 23 from noon – 4 PM. Rain date is Sunday, April 24.

For the children, there will be a petting zoo, face painting, and colonial games and crafts. For all ages, there will be costumed actors portraying Edward Hicks in his youth and older years, live colonial-era music, a pop-up art gallery of Hicks' most famous paintings, a virtual walking tour of Langhorne and its ties to the Hicks family, craft vendors, and artists of present-day Langhorne. There will also be a lecture on the elements of Hicks' work as influenced by his Quaker faith.

Shoppers will enjoy the Colonial Flea Market, featuring high quality antiques and collectibles, and the Four Lanes End Garden Club's annual plant sale. The highlight of the day will be the dedication of three murals, created by Langhorne artist Jean-Marc Dubus, that honor Edward Hicks, his art, and his commitment to peace.

On Sunday, March 27, Langhorne Council for the Arts will offer an exciting photo op for adults, kids, and pets: get your photo taken with the Edward Hicks panel of the mural before it is installed in its permanent location. Come to the Richardson House, 102 W. Maple Avenue (corner of Maple and Bellevue Avenues, aka The Peace Center) between 1-3 PM. For more information, please visit www.LanghorneArts.org or email LanghorneArtsEvents@gmail.com.

Annual Sessions Workshop Proposals

Applications are currently being accepted to facilitate a workshop at Annual Sessions. Workshops will take place simultaneously on Saturday June 25, 10 am to 4 pm. Five workshops will be chosen. This makes it imperative for workshop applications to reflect the goals set by the Sessions Coordinating Committee. Workshops need to be simple, direct, and they should be grounded in Quaker faith and practice. Workshops should respond to this year's theme of: "Across the generations, as we repair broken foundations, we become unified in our beloved Quaker community." Workshops need to relate to at least one of the following topics: inclusion and belonging, embracing new people, climate change, equity and justice, or supporting local Quaker meetings. They should also include opportunities for skill building, concrete suggestions for further engagement with the issues being discussed, relationship building, and concrete things to take back to participants' communities. Click here to apply.

Grand Finale of Vanguard's Big Climate Problem Walk

What better way to celebrate Earth Day than to challenge those who profit from the Earth's desecration? As one of the world's biggest investors in coal, oil, and gas, Vanguard has the power to help steer our economy away from climate catastrophe and environmental injustice, but first it needs to chart a new course. That is why EQAT is concluding a five-day walk from the Delaware River with a huge, vibrant action at Vanguard's corporate headquarters in Malvern.

Meet the team at the Paoli Train Station on Friday, April 22nd at 8:30 am to walk the final mile with the walkers. Please register here so they can estimate attendance and keep you up to date on things like parking and how to get a ride if you can't walk a mile. The best way to stay informed is to be placed on an e-mail list to receive Zoom links for this and future Extended Worship meetings; contact Jim Strong at jmmstrong@gmail.com.

With more meetings opting for hybrid worship, PYM welcomes our own John Marquette, a member of Lehigh Valley Friends Meeting, to the role of Resource Friend for Hybrid Meetings. John is available for email, phone, Zoom, and in-person consultation throughout the four-state area.

Speaking to Children About War

PYM Youth Religious Life Coordinator Melinda Wenner Bradley offers this: "A parent in my meeting shared with me that they were not sure how to talk to their children about Russia's war on Ukraine. I recalled a line in an article that had resonated for me as a parent and educator: We don't have to protect children from difficult feelings, but we must not leave them alone with them. Here are three good pieces to read and share with parents as we support our children in an uncertain time":

- How to Talk to Kids about the Ukraine Invasion
- What to Tell Kids About Ukraine: Recommendations from a Psychologist
- How do you talk to your young children about war?

Earth Day Activity for Children

Blue Dot Kids Press is celebrating by planting trees! They will plant a tree, via a partnership with One Tree Planted, for each child who participates in a simple Earth Day coloring or photography activity (instructions here). The initiative is designed to promote citizen action—children like knowing they're making a difference in the world!

Request a Visit from Youth Program Staff

PYM staff are focusing on outreach and visitation with local and Quarterly meetings! They will traveling to you to attend worship, share fellowship, and spread the word about the Yearly Meeting's programs for children, youth, and families, and the spaces they create to connect with other young Friends.

Youth Programs staff have planned and facilitated the children/youth programs at past local meeting and Quarterly meeting retreats, and hope to do more as a way to support Friends in community and re-gather our youth community!

A gift of the pandemic is the opportunity to rethink, "that's the way we've always done it," and our local meeting communities might consider how a more intentional intergenerational focus in worship and meeting life serves to invite more active family and youth participation. If you're a meeting who is doing this — invite staff to come learn from you! If you're interested in this idea and not sure where to begin, click here to request a visit.
