Spotlight on Taking Action on Climate Change

Recently the Eco Justice Collaborative submitted a Minute to Address the Climate Crisis to PYM. In it, Quakers are called to “take immediate and resolute action” to mitigate and adapt to climate change.

We have an opportunity right now to influence Senator Casey and President Biden to include Carbon Pricing in the Reconciliation Package. Carbon Pricing is a critical step in reducing carbon emissions by 50% by 2030 and by 90% by 2050. Carbon Pricing is a catalyst for many of the other mitigation actions which together hopefully will stabilize the climate over the long term.

The immediate action Quakers (and others) can take is to email both Senator Casey and President Biden using direct language like this: Recent unusual tornado activity in Bucks County, Pa demonstrates that our climate has become more dangerous. Put Carbon Pricing in the Reconciliation Package.

There is no need to explain carbon pricing to them, they know what it is. One way to contact them is through their office email:

Senator Casey: <https://www.casey.senate.gov/contact>
President Biden: <https://www.whitehouse.gov/contact/>

The second way is through the Citizens’ Climate Lobby (CCL) portal. So far over 15,197 emails have been sent to President Biden; the goal is 20,000. You don’t have to be a member to use the portal. Follow the prompts at <https://citizensclimatelobby.org/white-house/>

Please send the emails today! If you’d like more information on how to take further action on climate change, contact Tom Wells, Fallsington Meeting at tomwellsffm@gmail.com.

Welcoming Afghan Refugees

Around the Yearly Meeting

Swarthmore Friends Meeting

The Lenni-Lenape People Are Still

Here: If you saw Trinity Norwood walking down the street, you might not realize that she is a Native American, a member of the Nanticoke Lenni-Lenape Tribal Nation in New Jersey that many of us believed had been driven from this area long ago. But Trinity is here, her family, friends and tribal community are here, and they have a lot to tell us about their struggles to survive through history, to be respected as holders of deep cultural traditions, and to be recognized by us and our state governments as citizens of proud indigenous nations.

Trinity Norwood will speak to Swarthmore Meeting and the wider community on these topics and more on Tuesday November 9 from 7-8:30pm via Zoom. Contact Lynne Piersol, lhpiersol@gmail.com for the Zoom link.

Concord Quarter/PYM

This program will be held in-person, however it may be changed to virtual if COVID safety restrictions are required. Registrants will be notified by email of any changes. Registration is required.
